

WHY KEEP THE OLD MACHINES?

The history of the powered bicycle goes back more than a century, indeed the very first vehicle to run with a petrol engine was the Benz two-wheeler! Since then machines have progressed from high, unstable and unreliable contraptions to the present-day superbikes which have roadholding, performance and comfort inconceivable to the pioneers.

In the 1930s it was realised that, unless there was encouragement for the preservation of some examples of each era the machines would be scrapped, and there would be no record of the dramatic and interesting story of a great industry. The first organised event for the so-called "old crocks" was a run over the route of the original 1896 Emancipation Run, from London to Brighton, and this was the start of an event which has continued ever since, with increasing participation by Irish riders. Nowadays the Vintage MCC has more than 12,000 members

In Ireland the Leinster Club held a run for old cars before the Second World War, in which some motor cycles took part, and the famous D&D Mosney Runs were well supported from the 1950s. A motor cycle section of the Irish Veteran & Vintage Car Club was formed in 1967, running events for some years, which led to the formation of the present IVVMCC in 1976.

Early standards of restoration were generally much less ambitious than today, and much of the fun was dressing up in fancy gear, with the result that getting to the finish was quite an achievement. Nowadays the restorer is supported by a great number of specialist suppliers, and many home restorations achieve a remarkable standard.

The history of the motor cycle is fascinating, ranging from the exotic racers to the humble workaday two-strokes, and it is a history in which Irish people have played no mean part. There is a camaraderie among riders which makes newcomers instantly welcome, whether or not they are owners of machines, and the "craic" on the average run has to be experienced. We try to have a talk or video, or something of interest at every Club meeting.

The Club is affiliated to the Motorcycling Union of Ireland and to the Vintage Motor Cycle Club of Great Britain. It is actively engaged in the preservation of Ireland's motor cycling heritage for present and future generations.

Our monthly newsletter, 'Exhaust Notes', is free to members, and technical help and a library service is available. We also have a members' website. The best part of course, is the members themselves!
